~ Sacred Loving Kindness ~

Combining the magic of bodywork and the healing of our psyche and relations, we will learn how to communicate with and touch ourselves and others with healing love and kindness.

Therapeutic Trance is about accessing the limitless and creative freedom of the mind.

Syntropy teaches you how to live the freedom in your body.

Syntropy is about awareness, choice and freedom in the body and movement.

Therapeutic Trance helps you integrate that choice and awareness into the mind and emotions.

The following will be developed from the physical, emotional and spiritual levels:

- Assessment of physical and psychological structures and learning what to do with this information
- Watching, listening and feeling for healing responses
- Creating safety for healing (trauma, health issues)
- Generating life force (chi) necessary for healing to occur
- Discover your own way into therapeutic trance and freedom in the body

We may also explore issues of your choice, such as:

Family issues ✨ Self-confidence, self esteem and self image ✨ Sexuality ✨ Life purpose ✨ Healing the past

PAUL CARTER, PhD

Paul has a profound respect for the wholeness and integrity of each individual being, giving people a sense of confidence in their own integrity and trust in their own spirit; this is fundamental to his approach in the areas of personal growth, healing work, relationship counseling and sexuality. He is also greatly appreciated for his lightness and his playful approach. His professional career has spanned 29 years of widely acclaimed training groups of health professionals and educators worldwide. He was trained in hypnotherapy by Dr. Milton Erickson and in family therapy by Dr. Virginia Satir and was a member of the original Bandler-Grinder research team from which the field of NLP arose. Together with Stephen Gilligan he created and led the first 2-year training programs in Ericksonian Hypnotherapy in Europe. He specializes in the powerful combination of trancework used together with creative movement, ritual and the inspirational power of nature. Today he lives in Hawaii and Switzerland where he sees individuals and couples and provides individual healing retreats in addition to his teaching abroad.
